Grayson Lake State Park

Sheer sandstone canyons and gentle slopes comprise the 1,512 acres of Grayson Lake State Park. This site was a favorite camping area for Shawnee and Cherokee Native Americans. The hiking trails offer several species of ferns, mosses, and lichens, the flowering rhododendron, “lizard head rock,” and the unusual combination of beech-hemlock trees.

The Hidden Cove golf course ranked #4 by “Golf Digest” in its list of “2004 Best New Affordable Golf Courses” and is part of the Kentucky State Park system’s “Signature Series” golf courses.
